Part V. Profile of services available in Kazakhstan regarding preparation and shipment of remains.

(1) Maximum period Before Burial of Remains:

Kazakhstani law does not place a time limit for burial of embalmed remains. Unclaimed remains will be buried within 7-10 days.

(2) Embalming:

In general embalming is done after autopsy. It can be done either in the morgue, funeral houses, or at the place of residence by an embalmment specialist from the above mentioned institutions. Embalmment is required for exportation of remains.

(3) Cremation:

No facilities for cremation are available in Kazakhstan. The nearest facilities are in the larger cities in Russia.

(4) Caskets and Containers:

When the remains are to be transported out of the country, the remains are placed in a zinc casket which is hermetically sealed. The casket can be enclosed in a hardwood coffin. Before the shipment is made, the casket and the coffin are normally placed in a wooden shipping crate.

(5) Exportation of Human Remains:

Local requirements including those of shipping companies for the exportation of human remains are as follows:

- Embalming of the remains
- Enclosure of the remains in a zinc casket and wooden coffin.
- Notarized copy of the Local Death Certificate issued by ZAGS (original and translation should be submitted to the Consular Section for issuance of the Consular Report of Death)
- Authorization from the Sanitation-Epidemic Station for transportation and burial of the remains.
- Act (“Spravka”) issued by the company sealing the zinc casket certifying that the casket only contains the remains.
- Mortuary Certificate issued by the Consular Section
- Consular Report of Death issued by the Consular Section
- Copy of the deceased person’s passport
- Customs Declaration

(6) Exportation of Human Remains/Ashes:

There is no crematorium in Kazakhstan.

(7) Costs:

All dollar costs are based on the exchange rate as of April 18, 2013: $ 1.00 = 150.9 KZT

- a) Coffins and caskets: The cost of a zinc casket starts from $600. The cost of wooden coffins depends on the size and the material used, starting from $ 110 for a regular adult coffin to $2000 for a luxury one.
- b) Local burial: The price for a grave in Almaty starts from $200 at the Christian cemetery and from $254 at the Muslim cemetery. The fee for rental of a ceremonial hall is about $200.
- c) Embalming: The fee starts from $50-60/day depending on the condition of remains and the service provider.
- d) Shipment: International shipment of remains from Almaty is provided by KLM and Lufthansa airlines. Remains are transported as cargo. Domestic shipment is mainly provided by Air Astana (they can also ship the remains to Moscow, Russia). Their rates vary from $1.4 to $2/kg depending on the destination. Cold storage up to 24 hours – free of charge; more than 24 hours – $0.17/kg. The table below provides KLM and Lufthansa fees to ship remains from Almaty to JFK Airport in New York, NY

Fee	Lufthansa	KLM
-----	-----------	-----

AWB	$20	$20
ATA-JFK rate	$16.5/kg	$15/kg
Fuel Surcharge	$0.75/kg	$0.80/kg
Security	$0.18/kg	$0.14/kg
Handling	$50	-
Other	$150 (HUM Fee)	-
Total for 200kg	$3706	$3208

The approximate weight of remains and casket is 200 kg.

(8) Exhumation:

Exhumation is available, but not at all mortuaries since it a very rare practice in Kazakhstan. In order to get such services, the mortuary should be provided with:

- Death Certificate
- Formal request from the next-of-kin (NOK)
- Authorization for exhumation from the city sanitation-epidemic station
- Authorization from the city Prosecutor's Office.

The cost of exhumation starts from $250-300.

(9) Shipment:

In-country transportation is available by truck, train, or by air. Such costs would depend on the mode of transportation available and the distance traveled. Transportation by train or by air requires a zinc container, but for truck transportation only embalming is required.

International Shipping from Kazakhstan is possible by Lufthansa or KLM. Lufthansa flies to the U.S. from Almaty daily. KLM operates flights on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays, and Sundays. There is no Lufthansa or KLM Cargo in Astana. Domestic shipment can be arranged by Air Astana, which can also ship remains to Moscow, Russia.

Any cases of non-natural death are reported to the police and they are subject to autopsy which is performed by the Center of Judicial Medicine. The Center then issues the Medical Death Certificate (“Spravka o smerty”) stating the cause of death.

In case of medical or natural death, the death certificate is issued by a physician. The actual Kazakhstan death certificate (“Svidetelstvo o smerty”) is obtained at ZAGS, the local acronym for the City Office of Civil Records on submission of “Spravka o smerty” and the passport. If the deceased is a foreigner the passport and a copy of ZAGS registration is transferred to the Department of Internal Affairs. Subsequently the passport is forwarded to the U.S. Embassy via the Kazakhstani Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The death certificate is given to the next of kin.

In Kazakhstan a burial in a grave is the most common way of disposition of remains. Since the majority of the population is comprised of Muslims and Russian Orthodox Christians, as a rule a funeral procedure includes a wake, a burial and memorial dinner according to the local religious traditions.
